Project Narrative/Justification:

The intent of the MHA Livestock Association is reviving the once unique and characteristic of Native Americans on the Fort Berthold Indian reservation. Including the pride and freedom to live hard while fine tuning the life of an Indian cowboy.

The people of Fort Berthold reservation was where most Indian families worked for a living by raising cattle, horses, and farmed their own land base. And the ills of society and the prevalence of alcohol, drugs and lack of jobs has caused the people to become too dependent on social services provided by agencies such as: BIA, IHS, Tribal services and other social services. Therefore the leadership of the MHA desires to bring back to the native people of the MHA Nation the attributes of raising horses and cattle and making an independent lifestyle for those living within the confines of Fort Berthold Reservation.

The Purpose of the MHA Cattle Relending Program is to assist existing ranchers, and beginning ranchers interested in becoming participants in the farming and ranching agriculture economy.
